

JUSTICE is a law reform and human rights charity. We conduct research, produce policy proposals and influence policymakers at the highest levels to achieve a fairer, more accessible and more transparent justice system.

OUR PURPOSE

We work across the entire justice system, working to uphold the rule of law and solve systemic issues that affect thousands, if not millions of people. We work in the areas in most need of improvement and where we can affect the greatest change. We are a cross-party organisation, led by evidence and our values, not politics. We provide an impartial, expert voice and generate pragmatic recommendations for implementation by Parliament and other public bodies.

OUR CURRENT FOCUS

We examine and respond to a range of Government policy and legislation including the Bill of Rights Bill, the Public Order Bill, and the Victims Bill – seeking to raise the profile and importance of individual rights, the rule of law and the role of lawyers as trusted guardians of our constitution.

Here is a sample of our current research and policy projects:

- Reforming the Windrush Compensation Scheme;
- Improving access to justice for separating families;
- Ensuring civil ‘hybrid orders’ (such as Domestic Abuse Prevention Orders) are issued and enforced fairly, consistently and in a rights compliant manner;
- Improving public body decision-making which has been outsourced to private companies;
- Improving administrative decision-making in prisons.

We run an extensive events programme, from Conferences to discussion panels, throughout the year, convening experts to discuss topical legal and human rights issues, and sharing their knowledge and expertise.

With the current threats to the rule of law, the Government’s heavy legislative programme, the Covid-19 backlog exacerbating an already strained system, and attacks on the legal profession, our work has never been more crucial.
